NOTES TO THE CONDUCTOR

Made famous and funky by R&B singer James Brown, Living in America is arranged with a funky groove. The bass part may seem somewhat repetitious but that is what makes the groove work so well. The bass part is not difficult but must be right in the rhythmic pocket with the drumset.

The opening statement is ♩ , played solid and with confidence. The rooftop accent (♩) is played detached and accented, the staccato is short but not clipped. Always be certain to establish the tonality on a staccato note. In measure 9, the off-beat eights with the (♩) accents are a good example of playing detached—think “daht.”

There is some potentially tricky syncopation in the wind parts. It might help the players with some rhythmic figures if they think of subdividing the quarter notes into sixteenths.

Measure 60 is the solo section for tenor sax, trumpet or trombone. This can be any or all of these players, or open it up for other soloists if desired. Cue backgrounds as desired. In measure 76, the horns play but the rhythm section drops out. The band must maintain the energy and groove throughout this section. Suggest that the players focus on their internal clock to keep time.

Enjoy!
