NOTES TO THE CONDUCTOR

This arrangement of "Caravan" will take the players and the audience members on a memorable journey. The chart starts very powerfully in an up-tempo swing feel, and then moves back and forth logically between a straight-eighth groove reminiscent of Herbie Hancock's "Maiden Voyage," a medium swing feel, a double-time swing feel, and a high energy 12/8 Afro-Cuban feel.

Since there's so much happening at the beginning and the reprise at measure 159, the drummer should hit all the rhythmic cues, but not necessarily with fills; less is more here! The written trumpet solo at measures 27 and 179 should be played loudly, very freely, and with lots of vibrato. The written trombone and baritone sax solos which follow should be played in a similar fashion. Beginning at measure 61, the tenor sax solo should start simply and gradually build to measure 73. The same solo shape will also be effective from measures 79–119. In a similar fashion, the drum solo at measure 151 should begin sparsely and then gradually build with intensity. By the third or fourth time at measure 155, the drummer should be hitting it pretty hard. This sets up the reprise of the first 18 measures of the chart. After the re-statement of the melody, the tenor sax begins to solo again. Alto sax 1 and baritone sax join in at measures 189 and 193 respectively, which adds to the intensity. The chart continues to build to the very last note, which should be held just a little longer than usual.

This arrangement was commissioned by Chris Allen and the Walt Whitman H.S. Jazz Ensemble, Bethesda, MD. They never cease to amaze me!

Enjoy.
