NOTES TO THE CONDUCTOR

This arrangement features the bass trombone. It is a slow swing, relaxed and kind of bluesy. I suggest keeping the tempo as marked; any faster and it may lose some stylistic character. At this tempo, the eighth notes are swung throughout the arrangement.

The bass trombone player should play the solo lines with confidence—don't play it cautious—dig in.

The soft (p) saxophone unison at measure 5 should be played without any vibrato. Again at measure 13 and wherever unison lines occur.

For the brass and saxes, give the punch note on the "and" of 2 in measure 8 a full eighth note value—think "daht." This occurs again in bar 64. The brass quarter notes in measure 19 are detached, fat and laid-back just a bit. The fall in measure 26 is long so begin the fall on beat 4. The brass should follow the lead trumpet in execution of this fall. The brass shake in measures 11 and 12 should be slow and bluesy, but controlled.

The lead trumpet part at measure 29 goes up to a written C-sharp, D and E with cues for the 2nd trumpet as well. This is unison for the section, so if this note is not consistent, then direct the lead player to play it 8vb. This section should be solid and in tune. Make certain the trumpet section releases together.

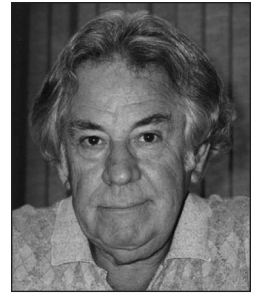

There is a Harmon mute solo for 2nd trumpet at bar 37. The written solo is the default or prepared solo. If the soloist wishes to improvise, I suggest first learning the tune, then the notes in the chords which will help with the improvisation process.

The saxes have a double time figure in measure 56. Subdivide the beats for a nice relaxed double time feel—don't rush it.

The bass trombone soloist will need a big breath for the last few measures. Relax and strive for tone!

Enjoy!
