About the Music

A masterpiece of 19th-century repertoire, Pictures at an Exhibition was originally written for piano solo and later orchestrated by Maurice Ravel. This arrangement is drawn from the original piano work.

The original is a musical depiction of 10 scenes by the architect and artist Victor Hartmann, with a recurring “promenade” representing the viewer’s movements among the pictures at the exhibit. Included in this arrangement is the initial Promenade and the following six movements:

- The Gnome — a toy nutcracker with gnarled, crooked legs.
- The Old Castle — a troubadour singing in front of a medieval castle.
- The Tuileries Gardens—Children Quarrelling at Play — Hermann’s picture of The Tuileries depicts an empty garden, which Moussorgsky enhanced musically.
- Ballet of the Unhatched Chicks — a costume design from the ballet Trilby, that of an egg with legs jutting out.
- The Hut of Baba-Yaga — from Slavic mythology, Baba Yaga is a witch whose house stands on chicken claws so that it may turn to meet its guests.
- The Great Gate of Kiev — a sketch by Hartmann of a commemorative gate of massive proportions, which ultimately was never built.
