About the Music

In 1874, Edvard Grieg began a two-year project to compose incidental music to a play by Henrik Ibsen. The production was about Peer Gynt, a Norwegian adventurer. The result was some of the most memorable music to come from Scandinavia.

The following movements make up the first concert suite. Morning Mood is arguably the most well-known depiction of dawn in orchestral repertoire. A lilting $\frac{6}{8}$ setting showcases Grieg's lyrical melody. The somber, heartfelt Aase's Death characterizes Peer's grief at the death of his mother. Anitra's Dance comes from Peer's journey to Morocco. In the Hall of the Mountain King depicts a congregation of terrifying trolls and Peer's frantic escape from them.

This suite contains a broad range of Grieg's compositional techniques. Movements may be lyrical, chromatic, exotic, heavy, light, calming, or stirring, as was the range of experiences of the legendary Norwegian peasant boy Peer Gynt.
