Return of the Storm

Return Of The Storm is an exciting sequel to Los Angeles jazz writer Jeff Jarvis' composition Category 4, a musical portrait of Mother Nature's fury as a hurricane makes landfall. The powerful 12/8 Afro-Cuban funk grooves, quartal harmonies, and intense melodies characterize the power and tension of the raging weather event. Like Category 4, this is sure to be an audience pleaser and will make a great concert closer.

Rehearsal Suggestions

For optimum results, observing articulations and dynamics markings will support, but not compete with the melodic motives. Liberal use of auxiliary percussion will further enhance the Afro-Cuban style of Return Of The Storm. The composition is intended to sound intense, but wind players should avoid overblowing, instead generating excitement using a controlled, well-articulated approach. When rhythm section parts are notated, these parts are important to the piece, but for much of the chart, experienced players can "comp" their parts using the chord changes and slashes. During the solos, the rhythm section should maintain a driving groove and avoid playing too softly behind soloists. The more interesting the rhythm section plays, the more interesting the soloist will play!
