Ghosts: A Midnight Tango

"Do spirits gather for a dance or celebration in the dark of the night?" I'm not sure, but the rattling of bones and chains, mysterious groans, and calls heard after midnight make me wonder. "Ghosts: A Midnight Tango" will give band members the chance to explore the possibilities.

Percussionists can enjoy the opportunity to provide some of the chilling sounds. If possible, percussion instruments should be placed/held so they are visible by the audience. Vocalizations by band members could be added at the discretion of the conductor.

Weighty chains would be preferred and either rattled or quickly lowered on a table. Wooden wind chimes are often made of bamboo or could be made of dowel rods. The Lion's Roar, also known as a String Drum, can easily be manufactured; a search on the internet will find video instructions.
